The growing importance of arbitration as a means for international commercial dispute resolution requires independent platforms for ideas on the development and application of international arbitration.

Since its launch in 1984, the Journal of International Arbitration has established itself as a thought-provoking, ground-breaking journal aimed at the specific requirements of those involved in international arbitration.

The Journal, published six times a year, offers an immediate forum for original thinking, penetrating analysis, and lively discussion of international arbitration issues.

Each issue contains in depth investigations of the most important current issues in international arbitration, focusing on business, investment, and economic disputes between private corporations, state controlled entities, and States. The Journal’s worldwide coverage ensures regular reporting on regional trends.

The new Notes and Current Developments section contains concise and critical commentary on new developments.
